The beginnings

On 13 March 1968, in the heart of Larciano, a small village immersed in the Tuscan countryside, Piero Niccolai launched a company that would mark a turning point in the history of its sector: FASS, Fabbrica Artigiana Scope e Spazzole. In an area rich in sorghum, a raw material essential for the production of brooms at the time, the company's founder dreamed of creating cleaning tools that would embody the Italian craftsmanship tradition. However, with the advent of synthetic fibres, sorghum soon became obsolete and impractical, and FASS embarked on a journey of innovation, transitioning from sorghum brooms to more modern, economical, and higher quality plastic brooms and brushes.

Fass and its mission

Today, thanks to its investments in machinery, R&D, and technology, FASS has become one of the most cutting edge companies in its sector, and is capable of meeting its customers' and suppliers' most challenging demands. FASS's mission is to design and manufacture products that are proudly Made in Italy, using the most innovative technologies available, in constant pursuit of an optimal balance between quality and competitiveness.

Sustainability: one of our core values

At Fass, innovation is closely linked to sustainability: one of the fundamental values that the company pursues by using recycled materials and ensuring the low impact of its production processes, with a focus on respect for people and the planet.

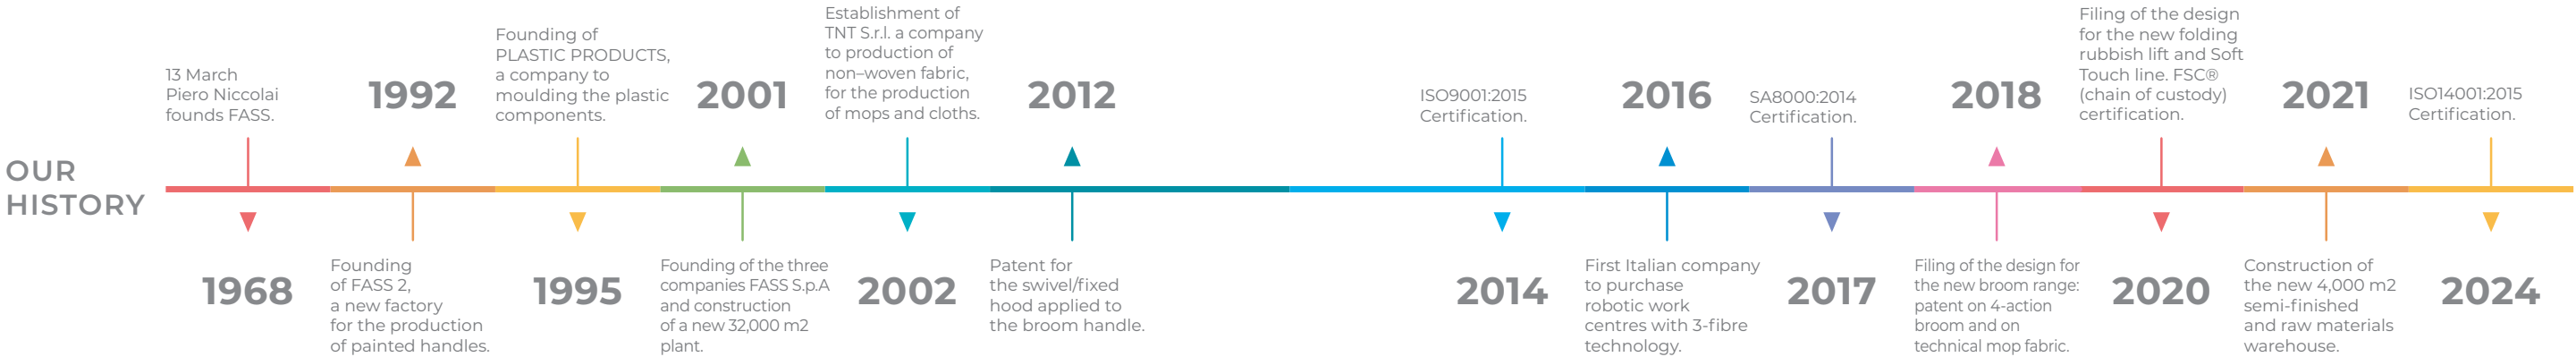

Vertical integration and design thinking

The company's vision: 100% Made in FASS. This concept conveys the high level of vertical integration that sets the company apart on the international stage: designing everything based on the customers' needs, with production carried out in-house, at a single Italian factory, is the best way to guarantee quality, reliability, and complete process control. From conceptualisation to "design thinking," prototyping, engineering, and the mass production of the tailor-made product, everything takes place within FASS..

Quality and certifications

These constitute two essential levers for the company. The ability to carry out customised projects according to its customers' needs is based on process management and input and output control. That's why the research and development of new internal procedures and continuous improvement have been entrusted to the company's in-house Quality Assurance Department. In 2019, the company created the FASS LAB: an in-house research centre where numerous tests are carried out using certified laboratory equipment, and where continuous improvement teams meet on a daily basis to test new technical solutions and evaluate all the products' performance.

The company has obtained the following certifications: EN ISO 9001:2015 / SA 8000:2014 / ISO 14001:2015 / FSC (CoC).
